

Which ombudsman for social housing complaints?

From April 2013 the Housing Ombudsman took over responsibility for all new complaints about social housing. This includes complaints about a local authority (or arms-length management organisation) relationship as landlord to its tenants or leaseholders. The Housing Ombudsman continues to look at complaints about housing associations.

The Local Government Ombudsman considers complaints about local authorities wider activities, for example in discharging their statutory duties in homelessness. There are areas where there may appear to be some overlap between the jurisdiction of the two Ombudsmen. We are both able to conduct joint investigations, and work under a Memorandum of Understanding.

The following guide sets out the complaint categories that should be referred to the different Ombudsman services.
